

Eco Funerals

As more and more people begin to consider the environmental impact of their choices, there has been an increase in the number of 'eco' and 'green' products in the funeral sector as well.

Our advice is always to ask questions about the sustainability or greenness of products, so you feel confident about what you are buying. There will be choices to make based on your personal preferences and products available. There may be more than one way to make something sustainable, but good business practice means companies should be happy to share their research and discuss their 'why'.

When considering the most sustainable options you can reflect on the production, travel miles, impact on the earth or surrounding wildlife, carbon output or degradability of a product.

We have a series of People & Planet ideas we share via our social media, here are some of the aspects of a funeral you might make more sustainable.

Avoiding embalming
Cremation vs. Burial
Coffin materials
Floral tributes
Headstone materials
Paper products
Transportation to different venues
Memorials

For more information on the specific scientific research we are part of look at www.rtnsoil.com

The Woodland
BURIAL COMPANY

Eco Funerals